AA Conformity and Individualism

MEMBERS of Alcoholics Anonymous share a common problem and in many ways are alike. They have the need and, in due time, the urge to conform as part of the therapy.

But it would be difficult to find anywhere a collection of more rugged individualists with a greater tendency toward nonconformity.

The very act of excessive drinking is a reckless and unconventional one. Only a man or woman who has thumbed his or her nose at society could become a first-rate drunk.

Conformity--as an antidote for ego run riot and as an exercise in humility--is the essence of the program of recovery.

This is made more palatable by such statements as "There are no rules in AA"; "Each member is free to develop his or her own individual program"; etc. No formal organization or AA hierarchy of officers exists to cramp the style of anyone in AA.

From Egotism to Humility

I was escorted to my first AA meeting following a three day non-stop binge. I must have presented a pitiful picture: bloodshot eyes, still mostly drunk and trembling — strange 'music' was echoing through my head. But then, after a few weeks, I returned to my proper position as center of the universe. When someone told me I was the most important person in the meeting I could see they were absolutely right; I would never let on, but I somehow 'knew' that it was all about me!

After a few marbles started spinning the same direction, I realized that it was time everyone in the rooms realized just how smart I really was; I began discussing my opinion concerning atoms, molecules, the speed of light and all things metaphysical (whatever that means). Just imagine my shock when Jack, a person I greatly respected, followed my share by stating: "When I talk, I try to make sense." That hurt my feelings!

A few weeks thereafter, at a Hollywood meeting, someone shared a physical problem. So, I just popped up and told of a certain drug I had wonders. I was proud of myself!

That is, till the next person shared that he had indeed tried that same drug in San Francisco, then decided to jump off the Golden Gate Bridge. Oops!

Someone wrote that we spend the first half of our lives building up our protective false self (ego) — and the second half getting rid of it. Well, after a few years of living the AA program of action (Twelve-Steps) I began to see myself for what I really was — just another drunk, lucky to be sober by the grace of God! Bill W. wrote:

(“Conformity” Continued from page 1)

And yet the area in which conformity is necessary is pretty large. Unless the alky builds his AA program on certain truths, while he may have a fine philosophy or something else that helps him to live, he won't have anything properly describable as an AA program.

AA has taken its philosophy from many sources, and it shares in the basic truths handed down by traditional religion and philosophy. It is the beneficiary of modern medicine, psychology, and psychiatry. But none of this is AA.
The unique value of AA has been in its application of those truths and techniques directly to the problem of the alcoholic in a way that makes them acceptable to him.

We say there are no musts in AA. Yet what kind of an AA would an alcoholic be who included in his program ideas like these:

"Alcoholism is a self-limiting disease and will cure itself if allowed to run its course."

"I can safely drink weak highballs or a

and what we really are, coupled by the willingness to become what God will have us be.”

I once wondered how high up I could go in AA: A GSR,? — A DCM? — An Area Delegate to NY? — A Trustee? Then came the down-to-earth answer: Sober! Sober is the highest level any of us can obtain in AA.
This realization should infuse continual humility into my deepest self — but it probably won't.

Bob S., Richmond, IN

little beer and wine now and then."

"I do not recognize any Power greater than myself."

"I don't need to go to meetings but can handle my problem alone."

"I have no defects of character and consequently need not try to improve."

Isn't it true that we all must conform to the extent of accepting with deep conviction the following ideas:

1. I am an alcoholic--no reservations.
2. Alcoholism is a progressive, incurable disease.
3. As an alcoholic I may drink again,
but I must admit I can never safely do so. Alcohol in any form is poison to me, and if I persist in drinking, I face the certain prospect of a premature death, commitment to a mental institution, or at best a life of misery.
4. There is a Power greater than myself that can help me.
5. There is a connection between any

defects of character and my being an alcoholic. In order to arrest my alcoholism I must examine, and try to make changes, in my character.

6. The best way to develop and maintain a successful AA program is to go to meetings and to try to carry the AA message to the other alcoholics who are still suffering.

New prospects are sometimes quick to understand how essential some of these ideas are to AA and even to decide therefore that AA is not for them.

Another old-timer and I once made a Twelfth Step call on a man whose main motivation in calling for help was the fear he might be arrested for drunken driving. We gave him the pitch with much fervor, enthusiasm, and--I thought--skill. Somewhere along the line I mentioned that part of the program was not to touch alcohol in any form at any time, one day at a time.

When we got ready to leave, the prospect made it clear he didn't want any part of the program. On the way home I said to my companion, "What did we do wrong? Where did we lose him?" My buddy said, "That's easy. It was when you broke the news that he couldn't be an AA and keep on drinking."

Strong as is the case for conforming, though, there is still plenty of room within the AA structure for individuality. In fact, it is the duty of every AA to develop himself as an individual in AA. Each alcoholic brings to the program a background of experience and talent not exactly like anyone else's. Each is in a position to make a unique contribution to his group.

The widest latitude of thought and action is open to any one in AA. He may believe as he chooses as to the nature of the Higher Power. His religion and political preferences are strictly his own business. He may go to seven meetings a week or never show his face outside his closed meeting, as he chooses. He may speak everywhere at open meetings until he practically becomes a professional or he may never speak.

He has the same freedom to develop individual tastes in music, art, or literature as anyone else. He can root for the White Sox or the Cubs or neither as he sees fit. What morning newspaper he reads is up to him. He can collect stamps or take up trout fishing.

Anyone who feels his individuality is cramped in AA because he has to accept certain truths is kidding himself. He can be as individual as he wants to be or can be in most of the things he thinks and does. He just isn't free to think he can safely handle alcohol or run the world as God's substitute. Neither can he safely indulge himself in hatred, violate the moral law, or fail to love and respect his fellow men.

He needs a faith. He needs to moderate his ego. He needs to get out of the driver's seat. But he also needs to go on being the unique individual human being that God created him to be.

OTHER CHANGES

The "Clubs" listed here are not A.A. Clubs. A.A. DOES NOT HAVE CLUBS!
A.A. neither endorses nor opposes such clubs. These are social clubs established by groups or individuals who are themselves recovering alcoholics. The A.A. group meeting at the club is available to any alcoholic - club member or not. The group is separate from the club and pays a fair rent for the use of the club facilities. Even though the group meets in a club that may be composed exclusively of A.A. members, and many members of the group may be club members, too, the relationship of the A.A. group itself to the club should be the same as it would be to a church, hospital, school, etc., in which it might rent space for its meetings.
