Why I threw the pie A Fourth Step list reveals reasons for past bad behavior

FROM the day I attended my first AA meeting I knew that the key to my survival was that I had to change, both attitudes and actions.

My original home group's format was a three-week rotation of Step, Tradition and discussion. Keeping in mind that I needed to change, I started working on the Fourth Step. I wrote my inventory with absolutely no fear; this was going to be an investigation of my behavior that would be used to keep me from repeating my pattern of being just "between drinks."

Being Catholic, I understood the benefit of confessing my sins, so I started a laundry list of bad attitudes and bad actions. Among these was the definite example of a really bad attitude and somewhat messy action--I'd thrown a pie in my brother-in-law's face. Thinking that examples like this were all that was necessary to complete the

Freedom Began in Prison

The Fourth and Fifth Steps help make beautiful music

THE STARLIGHT Bowl is a lovely outdoor concert auditorium, set deep between canyon walls, high above "beautiful downtown Burbank" in California. This summer night held particular significance for me. My ten-year-old daughter Cindy was with me, her silky golden hair spread over my knees as she rested her head on my lap. We were listening to the delightful strains of "Tales From the Vienna Woods," at a concert by the Burbank Symphony Orchestra.

It hadn't always been this way. . . .

Several years before this memorable night, I was released from a state prison, a stranger to my daughter and very apprehensive about how I'd behave in free society. I'd never been able to cope with freedom before.

Six years before my release, I stood at the bar in a local tavern with a pistol in my hand. I was a practicing alcoholic and desperately needed money to continue my latest drunk. Being too proud to beg, having run out of friends and family, and feeling the fantastic courage granted by much

I'm Worried About You, Old-Timer. . . and about some of the things you told me a few years ago

MY DEAR FRIEND:

You are now some fourteen or fifteen years sober, and I am sober only four or five. A few years ago, you told me that if there was ever anything that bothered me, I should ask you about it.
At this time, there are several things bothering me. To begin with, I am worried about you. I am wondering about some of the things that you told me a few years ago. My memory was not so good, so I wrote them down, and now I am checking them over again to make sure I don't make a mistake.

You told me a few years ago that AA should come first with all of us. I still agree with this, but I wonder if you do.
When I think of the word "first," it implies that there are other things following. For example: first, AA; second, wife; third, children; fourth, friends;
etc. It looks to me at this time as if you have made AA your whole life, instead of the first consideration in your life. It looks as if nothing else matters to you.
No room for wife, children, friends,
job, etc., only for AA.

The impression you once gave me was that AA is like a door, and one goes through that door to a sober, happy life.
You led me to believe that with AA I would stay sober and enjoy all that life had to offer. Has this changed? Did I misunderstand you? Is AA an end in itself? If I stick with AA, will I end up void of all things, left only with memories of AA meetings? What about the abundant life mentioned in the Bible?

When I came into AA a few years ago, you told me all that AA had done for you, the great help that our group had been to you. You told me that, if I would only listen, I could get well and have a happy life. The other day, I sat and listened while you were talking to a new man. You didn't tell him the things you once told me. You told him how many conventions you had been to, how many meetings you attended, how much you had done for AA. I wonder about this. . . .

I remember you told me that we AAs should be the most tolerant people in the world, and that we would be pretty sorry people if we didn't give the other fellow the right to be different from us, even if we thought he might be wrong.
Did you change your mind about this?
Is it all right to give 'em hell if they don't conform to "our" way?

I remember you told me that each person had to work this program out for himself: that the Twelve Steps were just guides; that each person had to interpret them for his own use; that no one could work the Steps for anyone else. You told me that, after working the Steps, I would arrive at a set of principles which, as the Twelfth Step states, I could practice in all my affairs.
Now I see you making decisions for others, though a few years ago you told me you could not do this. Now I hear you telling others how to work the Twelve Steps. It sounds as if you are telling me that I am not working the Steps properly, that I am not practicing these principles in all my affairs.

A healthy-minded person needs more than one concern in his life. We need friends in and out of AA; we need our family, our work, and many other interests. As my thinking progressed, my red wine, I was attempting robbery. Fortunately for the bar owner (and, as it turned out, for me), I was captured in the midst of my bumbling crime. The police treated me fairly, even kindly. The court procedures passed swiftly, and within three months I was on the way to a state prison. I was to remain there three years.

This three-year period became the greatest, most productive time I'd spent in all my thirty years up to that point. During my confinement, I again became active in my church, relearning many basic precepts of good living. I used the library facilities intensely, reading widely on philosophy and alcoholism. Most important of all, I became an involved, active participant in AA.

Delving deeply into the Twelve Steps under the adept guidance of the free AA members who came in twice a week, I was soon writing my Fourth Step inventory. Having completed this written confession to myself, I made arrangements with the prison staff to have an outside AA member come in to hear my Fifth Step. We were provided with a private office and coffee, and spent three hours reviewing the sordid details of my past. It was the first such occurrence in that particular institution, and it worked out so well that many men since then have been able to complete their Fourth and Fifth Steps while still incarcerated.

This inventory-taking was the turning point of my life. An almost immediate freedom from all guilt and remorse came upon me. I was literally free from my past. It was during this time that I learned what true freedom was. It had nothing to do with walls and guards--it had to do with a feeling inside. Freedom is a state of mind.

Today, I cherish my physical and emotional freedom with all my heart and soul. In order of precedence, it stands second only to sobriety. What an education AA has given to me! Everything I am or have belongs to AA in reality. More than tangible benefits, AA has given me a way to go, a way to live and live happily and abundantly.

Many blessings have been showered upon me during my five years and nine months of sobriety--great spiritual gifts, as well as the more ordinary supplies of money and goods. These great gifts come one after the other in spite of my own foolishness and fumbling, as I very slowly grope my way towards the light of reason and love. The good things increase in direct proportion to my willingness to become more teachable and humble in my daily affairs.

And so it is that a chronic daily drunk, discarded by free society, hating and rejecting the very society that spawned him, can come to enjoy what many "free" people may take for granted: a simple concert, a wonderful summer night filled with beautiful music, and a sweet little child who loves and trusts her daddy.

Fourth Step, I felt that I was making remarkable progress and was all ready to take my Fifth Step.

But before I announced to my sponsor that I was ready to sit down and tell her my list of "sins," I had one of those "light bulb" moments. The Fifth Step wasn't confession as I used to do it: confess, be absolved and then feel free to do it again. This was the time to analyze the "why" of the action. It's not that I threw the pie; it's, why did I throw the pie? Utilizing the honesty I was learning day by day, I saw clearly that I had thrown the pie because I resented my brother-in-law. He knew an alcoholic when he saw one, and I was so busy keeping it a secret that I feared he would share his opinion with the whole family (as if they didn't know). Having this fear and resentment only brought on tremendous self-pity: "Oh, poor me, why do I have to put up with this miserable individual?" Resentment, fear and self-pity: these were "the exact nature" of my wrongs. Finally understanding the purpose of this Step allowed me to review everything on the list and examine the motive behind each action or attitude.

I had heard that if I didn't take the Fourth and Fifth Steps I could get drunk again. Now I understood; if I didn't take those Steps, I'd never get that personality change necessary for recovery.

The "Clubs" listed here are not A.A. Clubs. A.A. DOES NOT HAVE CLUBS!
A.A. neither endorses nor opposes such clubs. These are social clubs established by groups or individuals who are themselves recovering alcoholics. The A.A. group meeting at the club is available to any alcoholic - club member or not. The group is separate from the club and pays a fair rent for the use of the club facilities. Even though the group meets in a club that may be composed exclusively of A.A. members, and many members of the group may be club members, too, the relationship of the A.A. group itself to the club should be the same as it would be to a church, hospital, school, etc., in which it might rent space for its meetings.

world grew smaller and smaller; drink was robbing me of everything I held dear. Friends and family left one by one, and the world grew smaller, until I was all alone. I thought that AA would change all that, and It did. But now it seems that, if I follow you, the world will get small again, and all that I have gained will be taken away or forced to leave my life to make room for this ever-growing "thing." After so long, it looks as if I will be alone again. Is this the way AA works? If it is, then maybe I had better quit now while I am ahead and take my chances on staying sober alone. What do you say, old-timer?
